Press Release "Talking To Space"

STANDARD CROW BEHAVIOR - TALKING TO SPACE - APRIL 16th 2021

It began with a microphone.

A microphone for three musicians, three voices and three instruments. The music and concerts from STANDARD CROW BEHAVIOR are an acoustic and three-dimensional choreography, which has been enjoyed by countless audiences since the band was formed - an experience which is intimate and direct, contemplative yet witty, full of strong and quiet moments.

Now the band has in hand its debut album, 'Talking to Space', a theme which can certainly be interpreted as an indication of current changes, namely physical and mental space between people. Due to these circumstances, the band has also changed its spatial behaviors - there are now three microphones. Yet the space is occupied the same nonetheless; it is filled with the warm, rich sound of their voices and instruments, overcoming the physical distance.

With their debut album, the band presents a selection of songs from their first two creative years. The music can be found drifting in the void somewhere between chamber bluegrass and songwriter pop arrangements, on the way from one to the other. The lyrics speak and clear language, simultaneously contemporary and timeless. They pose questions of responsibility, conscious actions and wise decisions. And stories are told; from gardens, snowflakes, and mountain villages, from personal knowledge and love. The world as home - closeness despite distance.
